MODULES AND THEMES

Self-Reflection and Mindfulness	Students are pushed to critically examine their own identities, values and belief systems to gain a deeper understanding of who they are, what they want to do in the future, and how they will get there. Mindfulness sessions provide students with essential skills and tools to help manage stress and anxiety as they face upcoming challenges in both their academic and professional future.
University and College Preparation	Students are asked to think about the coming challenges of post-secondary life with a focus on successful university/college applications, study strategies for the language proficiency tests commonly required for higher education admission (e.g. TOEFL, IELTS etc), and skills for success once they are admitted, including cross-cultural communication and identifying campus resources.
Academic English Skills	In the written communication section of this class, students will learn how to improve their ability to express themselves, whether on a college/university form or an employment cover letter. Students will gain a better understanding of the forms and standards suitable for writing essays in college/university. In the oral communication section, students master key competencies for academic success including group discussion, presentations, and active listening.
University and College Campus Tours	Campus tours are designed to feature the wide range of post-secondary disciplines that are available including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Undergraduate programmes (e.g. arts, sciences, business) – York University • Professional programmes (e.g. law, medicine, architecture) – University of Toronto • Alternative programmes (e.g. art, design, film/tv/radio) – OCAD & Ryerson University • Applied programmes (e.g. trade, technologies, community services) – George Brown College
Career Exploration	Students are encouraged to discuss their current career ambitions, which are then compared against future trends in the job market. Based on the career interests of the students, guest speakers from related industries are brought in to give the class an overview of the typical career path, and what constitutes success in the field.
Future Proofing	The nature of work has changed dramatically in the modern, technology-driven world, and continues to evolve. Students today increasingly need "soft skills" that are transferable to various types of employment, and are adaptable to future changes we still don't know about. This class builds on three skills identified by today's employers as being the most important for success: empathy, innovation, and collaboration.
